

Greensky Bluegrass imbue the Bottleneck with a colorful set + Previews!

David Ugarte

Subscribe

Sponsor an Examiner

This Examiner Rates Greensky Bluegrass:

Do you like this Review?

3 people like this. Be the first of your friends.

Greensky Bluegrass painted the Bottleneck with a rainbow of music

Photo: Greensky Bluegrass

Slideshow: Greensky Bluegrass rocks out at the Bottleneck

Popular articles

1. Kat Stacks issues warning: "All I know is money, all I know is evil."
2. Bartending 101: What is Angostura bitters?
3. Kat Stacks claims she was assaulted, served alcohol at Ice Lounge
4. 11 factors that affect a person's BAC
5. Russian spy, Anna Chapman, poses for Maxim
6. Kat Stacks talks up reality show, encourages "booty shots"

David Ugarte's recent articles

- The Spook Lights let their freak flag fly at the Jackpot + Previews!
- Trampled By Turtles stampede the Bottleneck + Previews!
- Goodness Gracious, Slippery LaRue, Electric Theory shock the Jazzhaus + Previews!
- Throw for Zoe gratifies the Uptown with four bands over five hours + Previews!
- Great American Taxi revs up the Bottleneck + Previews!
- Mouth mesmerizes the Jazzhaus with a funky disco party + Previews!

For all the music loving party-people still in town during KU's spring break, Monday night was a special treat. All the most hardcore bluegrass fans know where the party was last night; with Greensky Bluegrass at the Bottleneck. The Michigan based bluegrass band's sound stretches wide, from their traditional bluegrass roots to acoustic indie jams and accurate, intense covers of songs from all other genres. The opener TinHorn Molly, and Greensky Bluegrass both played vigorous sets despite the small crowd, rewarding the most loyal bluegrass lovers with an intimate, exciting concert.

To start off the night, TinHorn Molly warmed the Bottleneck up with their classic Americana Blues, jamming out with all kinds of instruments. A standup bass, guitar and banjo provided the bluegrass base for jams to expand from. TinHorn Molly's full, fleshed out set included a washboard, "squeeze box" (accordion) and "Vindicator" piano (baby piano). The band's harmony came to an ear-soothing climax with the vocals that brought every song together and held the crowd's attention from start to finish of the set.

A Monday night is usually relatively quiet, but much more so over Spring Break. When Greensky Bluegrass took the stage there was a meager crowd gathering on the dance floor with a scattering of listeners sitting back. But throughout their set the band collected a larger audience, and drove the shy handful of fans to shake and twist up and down the venue.

Greensky Bluegrass have unique, original styles in their bluegrass jams, but their instruments' natural harmony and the dynamic construction of each song, including thrilling solos and driving choruses are reminiscent of The Band. Their Americana jams are the stuff of legends, leading the crowd on long, winding journeys through the band's soul. The combined power of mandolin, banjo, guitar, and bass infused with the special sound only found in a dobro - or resophonic guitar - give this band a strong bluegrass sound. But beyond the expected styles of Americana and Roots, these musicians expand their sound to incorporate all kinds of genres. For last night's show the band included a Pink Floyd cover in their impressive set. They even played "Regulate" by Warren G.

Do You Want To Publish a Book?

Sign Up and Get Your Free Book Publishing Guide Shipped To Your Doorstep at Absolutely No Cost!

Free Email Marketing Solutions

Click here to start
Create and manage your email marketing campaigns.

Suggested by the author:

Mouth mesmerizes the Jazzhaus with a funky disco party + Previews!

From Quiet Arms rock the Granada and The Floozies get crunk at the Bottleneck

Waka Winter Classic is a toss-up after five bands throw down + Previews!

By David Ugarte

David Ugarte is 22 years old and originally from Chicago. He graduated from the University of Kansas' School of Journalism in 2009 where he wrote... Read more

View all Lawrence Guys Night Out Examiner articles

Subscribe to the Lawrence Guys Night Out Examiner

Lawrence Guys Night Out Examiner RSS